LITTLE JIM.

The cottage was a thatched one, the outside old and mean. Yet everything within that cot was wondrous neat and clean. The night was dark and stormy, the wind was howling wild. A patient mother watched beside the death-bed of her child. A little worn-out creature—his once bright eyes grown dim. It was a collier's wife and child, they called him "Little Jim." And, oh! to see the briny tears, fast hurrying down her cheek. As she offered up a prayer—in thought; she was afraid to speak. Lest she might wake one she loved far better than her life. For she had all a mother's heart, had that poor collier's wife. With hands uplifted, see, she kneels beside the sufferer's bed. And prays that He will spare her boy, and take herself instead. She got her answer from the boy, soft tell those words from him— "Mother, the angels do so smile, and beckon little Jim; I have no pain, dear mother, now, but, oh! I am so dry. Just moisten poor Jim's lips again, and mother, don't you cry." With gentle, trembling haste, she held a teacup to his lips; He smiled to thank her, as he took three tiny little sips. "Tell father when he comes from work, I bid good night to him, And mother, now I'll go to sleep." Alas, poor little Jim! She saw that he was dying, that the child she loved so dear Had uttered the last words she might ever hope to hear. The cottage door is opened, the collier's step is heard. The father and the mother meet, yet neither speak a word. He felt that all was over, he knew his child was dead. He took the candle in his hand, and walked toward the bed. His quivering lip gave token of the grief he'd vain conceal. And, see, his wife has joined him, the stricken couple kneel. With hearts bowed down by sadness, they humbly ask of Him, In Heaven once more to meet their own dear little Jim.

GIVE THE BARBER HIS DUE.

An Instance When the Man of the Chair was Prepared.

Puck.

The barber is a satirized and maligned artist. He is set forth as being a skillful business man and a humorist. If he were half as shrewd as he is said to be, he would certainly have sense enough to go into Wall street and become the possessor of a few railroads. And if he were the merry jester that he is claimed to be would get into a circus or minstrel troupe and secure wealth and recognition by the introduction of a fresh joke, which would not only redound to his credit, but be a step toward the annihilation of those which are so old that they are obliged to hobble on crutches and hold themselves together with trusses.

In truth, the barber uses only the most commonplace, every day language. To prove this it is only necessary to quote a conversation I overheard the other morning between one of these so-called fiends and a customer, the barber opening:

"Fine day!"

"Yes."

"Guess the rain's over?"

"Yes."

"We'll have snow before long, I think?"

"Correct. In some parts of the world they have snow even at this time, in other parts they never have snow, while there are regions where snow lies on the ground all the year round. You are right in your prediction, however, and you would be safe in betting on it without consulting the almanac."

"Are you in the Weather Bureau?"

"No; I sell pork."

Pause.

"Does the razor hurt?"

"Not at all. I can't feel it any more than you can feel a candidate's pecuniary pulse the morning after election day."

"The election excitement is over is it?"

"It is—it has been over about two weeks."

Pause.

"Is it too cold for you with the door open?"

"Not at all."

"We are going to have a mild winter."

"It looks that way, and I trust we may be able to scramble through on our bamboo canes and summer underclothes."

Pause.

"Close shave?"

"Yes, as close as you can; I want this shave to last until pay-day."

"Crops are good here."

"They may be; but it is not proper for a man who cuts hair to speak of crops. That was originally intended for a joke in London, where it was built, and had a long prosperous run, and underwent various changes to meet various contingencies. It is now now respected simply on account of his great age, and is kept alive on warm bricks, stimulants and medicated underclothes."

Pause.

"A sad suicide last night?"

"Didn't hear of it, but it must have been. Suicides are generally sad. Don't know as I ever heard of a real delightful suicide that embraced all the ecstatic elements of a sail over a tranquil lake at twilight, accompanied by a girl with soft, black eyes and a tender little rosebud mouth."

Pause.

"Your hair is getting thin on top."

"That's the correct place for it to get thin. Suppose a man's hair should fall out all around and remain intact on the top! Then he would have be tufted like a cockatoo and he would eclipse a minstrel show every time he lifted his hat to a lady. And he might wax such a tuft and work it up to a point like a goatee, and thus afford his friends lots of innocent amusement, or he might grow it longer, and let it hang around his head in a fringe, or convert it into a pigtail."

Pause.

"Bay rum?"

"Yes."

"Fifteen cents."

"Here."

"Thank you. Good morning."

"Good morning."

And the patron who had done twice as much talking as the barber walked out.

A "Strange if True" Story About Santa Anna.

Judge Major, of Kentucky, recently related the following story of Santa Anna, the Mexican Dictator: "Did you ever hear," he said, "that he was a Kentuckian?" I confessed that I never had. "Well that is believed by many old people about Frankfort; I have heard it from boyhood. It is said that Santa Anna, afterward President of the Mexican Republic, was an illegitimate son of one Nat Sanders, of this county. While a youth he went to New Orleans on a flatboat, and was never afterwards heard from. When captured at San Jacinto, in 1836, he was brought through this place on his way to Washington, and was recognized by the Sanders, who recognized him as their illegitimate and long-lost relative. He did not deny it. He spoke English like a Kentuckian and with a Kentucky accent. One of the Sanders had determined to kill him, on account of the death of of a relative in the massacre of the Alamo, but abandoned his purpose when he was convinced that they were blood relatives. The mother of Evan E. Settle, of Owenton, was a Sanders, and he bears a marked resemblance to the pictures of Santa Anna. Larkin F. Sanders, Representative from Carroll county to the present General assembly, belongs to the family, as also did the noted George N. Sanders, who figured so prominently in politics during the administrations of Pierce and Buchanan."

A Boy's Composition on Girls.

Girls are the only folks that have their own way every time. Girls is of several thousand kinds, and sometimes one girl can be like several thousand girls if she wants anything. This is all I know about girls, and father says the less I know about them the better off I am.

ELEGANT EASTER CARDS, AT

DAILY EVENING BULLETIN.

FRIDAY EVE., MARCH 17, 1882.

Republican Party Prospects.

THE St. Louis, Republican says: Republican newspapers are very industrious in pointing out the symptoms of discord in the ranks of the Democratic party, especially in the South. This sort of party tactics is resorted to as a sort of counter irritant. There is evidence enough that the Republican party is held together by nothing but the cohesive power of public plunder. This may at any time prove to be only a rope of sand. Strong as it is has proven during the venal period of Republican rule, it is a bond of union which always has it in the seeds of its own dissolution. The financial theories of the Republican party of the East, if reduced to practice, or pressed to the point of giving them real vitality, will inevitably drive the States of the Pacific slope and also Colorado into the Democratic fold. The Republican majority in those States, if it exists at all, is very doubtful. And yet the Republican party weakened by the loss of them, would be in a minority. Belford, has been openly rebellious throughout the present session. And the language of Senator Teller, of the same State, recently uttered in the Senate, is full of significance. After saying the present tariff is not the people demand, and condemning the policy that would "strike out of existence one-half of the money of the world that men holding the securities might have a better and stronger grip upon the people who hold the money and who pay the taxes in this country," he said: "Mr. President, I was educated in the Democratic party, and when it failed to represent my sentiments I had courage to get out of it, and I propose upon this question to represent myself and not allow the Republican party to be put in a position of misrepresenting the wishes of the great people of the West and South."

The slumbering hatred of the anti-third termers my bestirred into activity at any moment. The stalwart element have the advantage just now in the possession of the executive branch of the government, with all its patronage, but this serves only to intensify the jealousy and disappointment of the defeated faction. Conkling and Robertson menace the harmony of the party in New York, and the fierce war which is now made on Blaine not only endangers the success of the party to Maine, but is an ominous sign of general unhappiness among the faithful.

Even the South, which is looked upon as so promising a republican recruiting ground, presents its difficulties. Such Republicans as are there will prove themselves of a singularly meek and self-sacrificing kind if they shall consent to the entire immolation of their interest and total sequestration of Federal patronage, which they regard as rightfully theirs. They were tractable in Virginia under a great pressure, but it will be a marvel if they view with enthusiasm the purchase of unprincipled and half-hearted Republican allies with honors, trusts and patronage which have always and everywhere been regarded as the guerdon of party fidelity. They will begin to ask where the advantage to themselves is to come in. The organization of the Democratic party may not be as compact as it should be, nor its elements as homogeneous as could be wished, but it certainly does not face greater dangers nor require nearly so much skillful management as its opponent. It should win decisively as the coming contest now appears.

THE Democratic Campaign Committee has been organized at Washington, with Gen. W. S. Rosecrans as chairman.

WATERS OF WOE.

Nearly Sixty Persons Drowned on a Raft.

St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Mr. John Cain, a St. Louis stock dealer, has just returned from the flooded districts, and the account he gives of the suffering of the people in that region is certainly appalling. Arkansas City, he says, is completely inundated, the water at present standing five feet four inches in the stores on the main street. All of the wealthier class of the people, and, in fact, all who are pecuniarily able, have fled from that place and taken refuge at Pine Bluff and Little Rock. At Laconia Circle, directly opposite from Concordia Landing, Miss., over two thousand head of stock have been drowned, the property of Fred. Blackburn, the nephew of Gov. Blackburn, of Kentucky. When the break occurred in the levee at Riverton, Miss., a barge upon which sixty people had taken refuge was driven through the breach and whirled like a reed along with the rush of waters that followed. No tidings of it has been received. It is surmised by men who are familiar with the section of the country through which the barge must necessarily have floated, should it have remained afloat, that the people upon it must doubtless be starving to death, as they had no provisions on board at the time the catastrophe occurred, and there is not the least possible chance of obtaining any in the swamps in which they must have drifted. It is more probable, however, that the barge, upon being driven forcibly against trees and other obstacles, went to pieces, and all the people upon it met their death by drowning. Several members of the most respected families in the country bordering on the Mississippi river had fled to the barge as a place of safety, and the announcement of its probable fate has created the most intense excitement from Greenville to New Orleans.

SERGEANT MASON has been removed to the penitentiary at Albany, New York.

NEAL, the convicted Ashland, murderer denies emphatically that the bloody coat lately found is the one worn by him the night of the murder. He says he had but two coats and is able to show both.

FRIDAY EVE., MARCH 17, 1882.

THIS day of Ireland's patron saint,
Most pleasantly reminds us
Of Mason's good old "muster days,"
Now fifty years behind us.
When Charley Tudor used the fife
And fairly made it hum,
When George Orr played the "rack-a-tack,"
And Watkins beat the drum.
How up and down the thoroughfares,
Now stately piles adorning,
They marched and played that good old tune,
"Saint Patrick's Day in the Morning."

Marry Kernell, of the Hyde & Behman Combination, who are to appear at the opera house on the evening of the 21st inst., pays the following high compliment to their mule Jerry, who takes an important part in the entertainment:

KICKS.

Kicking is a by-word
In almost every show;
Kicking is contagious
No matter where we go.

Some kick for their salary,
Some because the jumps are long;
Others about the boarding place
And some when they are wrong.

They'll kick about the dizzy towns,
And also about the hall;
Others about the dressing-rooms,
And many for nothing at all.

But there is an actor among us
Who never says a word,
He travels with us every where,
And his voice is never heard.

Always ready for his act,
Never known to flinch;
And if he went to kick,
It wouldn't be over an inch.

He travels in the baggage car,
Don't bother about his fare;
And if the house is good or bad,
He never seems to care.

Concerning his weekly salary,
Why he never receives a cent;
And after he has done his act,
To his lonely bed he's sent.

Should he be very sick,
No one seems to care;
When it's time for him to act,
You'll always find him there.

He has a cut and lithograph,
And his name is on the bill;
And if his turn doesn't go immense,
He doesn't call the audience "gills."

He's ever in a pleasant mood,
You'll always find him merry.
And as good a card as any of us
Is poor old flop-eared Jerry.

Artificial Jimson Bloom.

Mr. T. Townsend, of Franklin, Ky., and Mr. J. R. Peace, of Hopkinsville, Ky., are in the city with a view of introducing among the tobacco planters of this district, Townsend's Artificial Jimson Bloom a wonderful invention for the sure destruction of the tobacco fly. These gentlemen come from the centre of the tobacco district of Southern Kentucky where their invention has been thoroughly tested and warmly approved by the planters there. The farmers of this region will do well to give a trial to the method offered them for the destruction of the fly, as it may prove of vast benefit to them in the end. The Jimson blooms are made of white porcelain or glass, and are sold at $1 a dozen.
Call at the European Hotel and get descriptive circulars. See the advertisement.

Pleasant Event.

Mr. John Taylor, one of the clever managers of the opera house has been presented by a thoughtful friend with a handsome money chest to safely preserve his theatrical earnings which have begun to bother him to keep securely. The chest is made of Spanish cedar, has brass hinges in Queen Anne style, and is provided with a neat and substantial brass lock. On the lid is inscribed the following:

Pray accept this money chest,
As mark of friendship tender,
And may it soon be so full,
You can't, alone up end'er.

Mr. Taylor was much pleased with the gift and acknowledged it in verse as follows:

I'll do my best to fill that chest,
By efforts unremitting,
I'll work with vim; fill to the brim,
Kind Providence permitting.

PILES! PILES! PILES!

A Sure Cure Found at Last—No One Need Suffer!

A sure cure for blind, bleeding, itching and ulcerated piles has been discovered by Dr.
Williams, (an Indian remedy,) called Dr. Williams' Indian Ointment. A single box has cured the worst chronic cases of twenty-five or thirty years standing. No one need suffer five minutes after applying this wonderful soothing medicine. Lotions, instruments and electuries do more harm than good. Williams' Ointment absorbs the tumors, allays the intense itching, (particularly at night after getting warm in bed,) acts as a poultice, gives instant and painless relief, and is prepared only for piles, itching of the private parts, and nothing else.

Read what the Hon. J. M. Coffinberry, of Cleveland, says about Dr. Williams' Pile Ointment: I have used scores of pile cures, and it affords me pleasure to say that I have never found anything which gave me such immediate and permanent relief as Dr. Williams' Indian Ointment.

whisky beverage, but are strictly medicinal in every sense. They act strongly upon the liver and kidneys, keep the bowels open and regular, make the weak strong, heal the lungs, build up the nerves and cleanse the blood and system of every impurity.

For dizziness, rush of blood to the head tending to apoplexy, dyspepsia, fever and ague, dropsy, pimples and blotches, scrofulous humors and sores, tetter, ring worm, white swelling, erysipelas, sore eyes and for young men suffering from weakness or debility caused from imprudence, and to females in delicate health, Frazier's Root Bitters are especially recommended.

Dr. Frazier: I have used two bottles of your Root Bitters for dyspepsia, dizziness, weakness

SKIN DISEASE.

F. Drake, Esq., Cleveland, O., suffered beyond all description from a skin disease which appeared on his hands, head and face, and nearly destroyed his eyes. The most careful doctoring failed to help him, and after all had failed he used Dr. Frazier's Magic Ointment and was cured by a few applications.

The first and positive cure for skin diseases ever discovered.

TRICKY DEVICES IN GAMBLING.

The Poker Ring, the Spy, the Stripper, and Last, But Not Least, the Bug.

New York Letter in St. Louis Republican.

One of the newest tools is the poker ring, an ingenious little contrivance for marking the cards while playing, in a systematic manner, so that in a half hour one can tell each card as well by the back as by the face. Although not generally known, it is now in use by a few of the oldest and best professional players in the country. It is no secret that in the gaming-houses marked back playing cards are used. The pattern on the back seems innocent enough until held at a certain angle under the light and then the difference between the cards may be seen. The greenhorn can not tell the pack, from fair cards in common use; but the professional can tell precisely the cards that his opponent holds. There are loaded dice, which are made in exact imitation of ordinary dice. Then there is the spy, a reflector of about the size of a half-dollar, which, it is said, can be used with perfect safety, either on the table or on the knee.

As for "strippers," another device in cards, a gambler says: "The benefit of these cards can not be estimated only in one way, and that is by the amount of money your opponent has got; for you are certain to get it, whether it is $10 or $10,000; the heavier the stakes the sooner you break him, and he never knows what hurt him." "The bug" is a device for withdrawing from the pack a number of cards from which the player can make up a hand to suit.

Millions Wasted Upon a Barren Rock.

A San Francisco letter in the Baltimore Sun says: Half a million a month continues to be spent in barren rock in vain search of bonanzas in the numerous mines on the Comstock silver mines, in Nevada, below an average depth of 2,000 feet below the surface of Mount Davidson. The 5,000,000 daily gallons of water is very hot everywhere below 1,600 feet, and, with a single exception, no large body of paying ore has been found below that level. At this time combined efforts are pushing explorations with fourfold activity, and streaks of quartz are met in the dark porphyry, giving hopes. But the stock market is set back by a new theory of expert James Deleven, viz.: "No bonanza will be found where the water has so high temperature, and all boring is money thrown away." Scientific reasons are given. Two of the mines have reached 3,000 feet in confirmation of this theory, and the bottom has dropped out of the mining stock market.

Recollections of the Capitol.

The wife of a member of one of the foreign legislatures at Washington was recounting her impression of her first attendance at a session of the House of Representatives, when one of her hearers asked whether it was the appearance of the members that particularly struck her. "No," she answered, "I think not."

"Was it their eloquence?" "Decidedly no."

"Well," persisted the questioner, "what was the most characteristic thing that you noticed?"

"Oh, the jets of tobacco juice."

Oliver Jones, a farmer residing near Richmond, Ind., fell from his buggy near Boston, Ind., while intoxicated, and died from exposure and the effects of his injuries.

Too Much Learning.

"What did you do with that letter that was on my table?" asked Gus De Smith, of the colored boy who cleans up the room.

"I tuck it to de postoffice, sah, and put it in de hole."

"What did you do that for? Did you not see there was no address on the envelope?"

"I saw dar was no writin' on de velope, but I lowed yer did dat ar' on purpose, so I couldn't tell who yer was a writin' to. I'se an edicated negro, I is."

BATCHELDER'S Ventilated Egg Case.

Patented February 15, 1881.

Indispensible to Merchants Shippers And Producers.

The outside frame of this carrier contains five trays, held in place by fasteners at end of case, as seen in cut. These Trays are constructed in reversible halves. The above cut shows one whole tray filled ready to be placed in case, each egg resting in its cardboard socket in such a manner as to be readily counted, candled, or transferred from tray to tray, or case to case, without rehandling.

For cold storage this case will store 60 dozen with racks made to receive the half trays, hence this is the cheapest storage case manufactured, saving largely in space.

The manner of holding the eggs on end prevents oscillation, adding, or breakage, and adds greatly to their freshness when carried long in storage. Size of 30 dozen No. 1 cases 25x12x14, weighs 20 pounds.

PRICES IN CHICAGO.

Shipper's No. 1, 30 doz. Case with Fillers complete 65 Cents.
Farmer's No. 1, 18 doz. Case with Fillers complete, 55 Cents.
Cardboard Fillers for refilling 20 Cents.
15 per cent. discount on lots of 100 cases.
Batchelder's Egg Tester, 1 string 6 doz. at once, saves to buyers many times its cost each season. Price $3.00.

By special arrangements made by the manufacturers of this case most Railroads will receive them as fourth class freight.

The 18 dozen case made especially for Farmers' use, sent to any address by express, with out nailing, with full directions for setting up, on receipt of 50 cents. Every Farmer and consumer should have one of these cases, it will save its cost every month. Agents wanted in every county. Address,
